INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS BELOW

The orders of the D.C. Court of Appeals are found in (Appendix A) of this document..

JURISDICTION

The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under Title 28 U.S.C. § 2101(c) and Rule 10(a) & 11 of this Court's rules.

CONSTITUIONAL PROVISIONS AND STATUTES

The 6th Amendment constitutional provision, 'right to counsel' is invoked based on an interlocutory order that dismissed the counselors of both litigants once the case was appealed to the D.C. Court of Appeals. This action forced the litigants to continue the case pro se in pursuit of a legal custody matter of a minor child.

The 14th Amendment constitutional provision provides '[N]or shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process, nor deprive any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection under the law'.

Title 28 U.S.C. Section 1253 for direct appeals from decisions of three-judge courts is invoked due to several interlocutory orders issued in this court where as these orders were issued sua sponte by a single judge which violated Title 28 U.S.C. Section 46(b) that guaranteed under this federal statute a three-judge panel in appellant matters in hearing cases and controversies of this matter.

Title 28 U.S.C. Section 2403(a) is invoked for the intervention by the Department of Justice in hearing matters once a federal question has been raised and a litigant has filed such challenge pursuant to Rule 44 of the Federal Rules of Appellant Procedure (FRAP) in the Court of Appeals, where as the Clerk of that court was to file with the Attorney General of the Department of Justice.

Title 42 U.S.C. Section 629 is invoked for the findings and purpose of an enactment of Congress to support adoptive parents and children under the 'Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997'.

Title 42 U.S.C. Section 1983 is invoked because the petitioner asserts that documents mailed from he D.C. Court of Appeals, to both the petitioner and respondent, which as both litigants were instructed to file motions to withdraw their attorneys were executed 'Under the Color of Law'.

STATEMENT

This case comes before this honorable court with over three years of litigation and proceedings. The petitioner and respondent are the parents of a child, Isaiah Gyamfi born March 16th, 1998. The parents of the child, Mr. Gyamfi and Ms. Brown never married and both parents equally shared in the parenting and rearing of the child. The Petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, later married on October 19, 2003 to Juliette Larmie and had two additional children, of the marriage, born in 2004 and 2006. In March of 2004, the respondent, Ms. Brown, filed for child support and received a temporary order until final review. The petitioner, Mr.

Gyamfi, at the instructions of the magistrate's court, challenged the temporary order by consolidating the temporary child-support order (See App I, pg __) with a custody petition with the Domestic Relations Branch of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. This was the appropriate legal procedure and course of action described under D.C. Code __:___.

The custody trial proceedings concluded on January 27, 2005 and after a period of over a year, the petitioner filed a DOM. REL. Rule 52(c) motion on February 22nd, 2006 with the Chief Judge of the D.C. Superior Court compelling the trial court to issue a final order. The court issued the final order on July 7th, 2006 (See Appendix B). The petitioner appealed this order and filed a timely notice of appeal on August 4th, 2006 with the District of Columbia Court of Appeals (See Appendix D).

The respondent, Ms. Brown, filed a 'Child Protective Order' and 'Contempt' motion on August __, 2006. These new issues were heard before the trial court on January 10th-11th, 2007. Consequently, there were no findings of abuse or neglect raised in these proceedings. On February 1st, 2007, the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, filed the first legal brief with the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. On February 23rd, 2007, the respondent, Ms. Brown filed a 'Notice of Appeal'. The respondent, Ms. Brown, then filed a timely answer and reply the petitioner's first brief on March 24th, 2007.

On March 27th, 2007, the court sent a 'RETURN NOTICE' along with the legal briefs and appendices to both Mr. Gyamfi and Ms. Brown requesting that they file a "motion to withdraw the attorneys" from the case. (See Appendix D). Mr. Gyamfi would not file such motion to dismiss his attorney sighting the seriousness of the case.

On April 11th, 2007, the D.C. Court of Appeals issued the first official order stating that they are have not received any filings of the briefs on the respondent's pending appeal case 06-FM-933. The court order directed both attorneys of record to file a brief and reply respectfully. The order then vacated the respondent's 'Notice of Appeal' filed February 24th, 2007 and finally dismissed the amicus curia petition entered by the respondent's biological father, Mr. Elliot Roy Brown, Sr (See Appendix A).

On April 26th, 2007, the Chief Judge for the D.C. Court of Appeals, Sua Sponte, reversed the April 11th, 2007 order and re-instated the respondent's vacated 'Notice of Appeal' #07-FM-289 and consolidated this appeal with the petitioner's appeal to establish a 'Cross Appeal'. The order also granted the motion's of the attorneys to withdrawal from the case allowing both litigants to precede pro se. Finally the order granted an additional 40 days to file a second appeal/cross appeal brief and reply brief.

On July 19th, 2007, Mr. Gyamfi filed his legal brief sighting three issues in his grievance with the trial court: excerpts 1) a challenge to Rule 52(a), the courts finding of facts 2) D.C. code 'Best Interests' statutes and 3) the constitutional issue of fairness under the 14th Amendment sighting the local D.C. Code addressing the definition of both the father and mother's relationship to the child.

When Ms. Brown failed to file her legal brief for her case #07-FM-289, within the 40 days, the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, filed a motion on July 18th, 2007 asking the court to comply with the original order to dismiss the respondent's appeal based on the out of time jurisdiction of FRAP Rule 4(a). The court denied this motion (See Appendix A). The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, then filed on August 2nd, 2007 a Motion to 'Reconsider the Dismissal Motion' of case #07-FM-289 based on FRAP 4(6)(b,c) and Rule 31(c) for failure to file. The D.C. Court of Appeals denied the 'Reconsideration Motion'.

On August 30th, 2007, the petitioner filed a 'Notice of Challenge' pursuant to Rule 44 of FRAP. This motion combined the constitutional questions of 'Time Jurisdiction', 6th Amendment regarding the dismissal of the attorneys, the prejudice and 'expand the record' with continued hearings before the lower court and the sua sponte orders issued by the Chief Judge (See Appendix D).

The petitioner believes that these orders violated Title 28 U.S.C. Section 46(b) and the similar state statute of D.C. Code § 11-705(b), which guarantees that appeals are heard by , at minimal, a three judge panel. These orders by the Chief Judge were issued, sua sponte, by one judge, the Chief Judge, non-inclusive of the original three judges assigned to the case (See Appendix A). As of to-date, the 'Notice of Challenge' has not been addressed with the court or the Department of Justice, Attorney General, as described in FRAP.

On August 24th, 2007, Mr. Gyamfi filed a supplemental brief to address the August 18th, 2005 hearing upon which the trial court based its primary findings of fact in the final order1. This hearing was conducted six months after the trial date had already concluded. The supplemental brief was the petitioner's response to the trial court's allegations alleged in the finding of facts of the final order(See Appendix B). The petitioner then filed his final brief on September 20th, 2007 upon which he covered the orders addressing the January 10th and 11th 2007 hearing regarding the alleged allegations of abuse and neglect.

On October 24th, 2007, the Chief Judge, issued an order consolidating a notice of appeal regarding additional orders issued by the trial court granting additional attorney fees. The last order issued by the D.C. Court of Appeals was issued November 14th, 2007 denying the petitioner's motion on Rule 8(a) 'Stay' pending appeal (See Appendix A). The respondent, Ms. Brown, never challenged the motion, however, the D.C. Court of Appeals issued an order to deny the motion with no authorities, arguments or case law. Apparently, this order is in direct conflict with Rule 55 of the FRCP, which stipulates that a default judgment should have been issued by the clerk of the court sighting "no opposition" from the defendant.

The petitioner is filing this interlocutory appeal based on the November 14th, 2007 order and subsequent orders mentioned in this statement. It has become apparent to Mr. Gyamfi that the D.C. Court of Appeals have a bias in these proceedings as they will deny the petitioner's motions without the respondent having to file any counter motion or offer any arguments or justifications. Hence, this court is being ask intervene and assume jurisdiction of this case. monitor these proceedings or transfer this case to a federal court since federal questions were raised regarding the constitutionality of these proceedings.

SUPREME COURT RULE 10(a) & 11 CONSIDERATIONS GOVERNING REVIEW ON CERTIORARI

1) The D.C. Court of Appeals Does Not Provide Constitutional Protection of the Traditional Family Unit and is not in Compliance with this Court's federal statutes and guidelines

On October 26th, 2007, the petitioner filed a motion pursuant to Rule 8(a) of FRAP. The motion outlined four fundamental reasons as to why this 'Stay' should be granted. Those reasons were protection of the family unit, opportunity for prejudice, financial hardship and merit of the case. The respondent, Ms. Brown, never challenged this petition and the order does not make note of an opposition motion. However, the court issued an order on November 14th, 2007 to deny the petitioner's motion. The court offered no case authorities, rules or procedures to base its decision. Hence, the petitioner asserts that this motion should have been granted partly to the fact that there were no opposition pursuant Rule 55 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP). The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, opted not to file another appeal or motion, out of concern that the D.C. Court of Appeals would further consolidate this appeal into an already existing appeal of four existing cases. Instead, this interlocutory appeal is based on the November 14th, 2007 interlocutory order (Appendix A, pg 13) and subsequent orders issued by the court. The petitioner believes that this pattern of orders is consistent with a bias and prejudice towards him because he is a father embroiled in a custody dispute. On consideration of this order, Mr.Gyamfi, asserts that the D.C. Court of Appeals has overstepped the "bounds of its duty under Rule 52 if it undertakes to duplicate the role of the lower court" Anderson v. Bessemer City S.Ct, 1985. 470 U.S. 564, 105 S.Ct. 1504, 84 L.Ed.2d 518. This course of action by the D.C. Court of Appeals violates his 14th Amendment Constitutional right to a fair and impartial hearing. This belief by the respondent is based primarily on the merits of the case and the governing federal and state case law that promotes a child's 'Best Interests' mandate.

The petitioner points to the case of Bazemore v. Davis, 394 A.2d 1377 (D.C. 1978), which stipulated that unmarried parents are on equal footing when determining the legal custody of the child. However, there are differences when determining the legal parent child relationship. This legal relationship is determined under D.C. Code § 16-909(a) which stipulates that the legal relationship between a mother and child is established by birth, whereas the legal relationship between the father and his ability to assert a "best interest claim" in a court of law is established based on a "preponderance of proof" that he had established a parental relationship to the child. In the above reference case, the petitioner was able to establish this proof by providing a video documentary, photos and witnesses as to his established parental relationship to the child (See Appendix C, pgs 4-5). This was extremely important, because the respondent, Ms. Brown, made allegations during the March 11th, 2004 'Child Support' hearing that suggested that the petitioner was absent from the child's life and that the child needed medical treatment based on alleged diagnosis with extraordinary medical expenses and private school tuition (See Appendix C, pgs 1-3). These allegations were challenged in the Superior Court and discredited with the testimony of witnesses, such as, Mrs. Ada

Smith (long time care giver & baby sitter), Dr. Ovetta Harrison-Harris (expert witness) and Dr. Joyce Brown-Andrews (maternal aunt and sister of the respondent). In addition the medical records, insurance notices, video and print photos and canceled checks was evidence that the child was well properly taken care of (See Appendix, pgs 4-13). Lastly, the trial court was made fully aware that the child was apart of an existing family unit. This was one of the first exhibits introduced and certified on the record during the trial (See Appendix C, pgs 4).

The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, asserts that if the roles were reversed, then the trial judge would have never allowed an unwed father to impugn the family of the biological mother and stepfather of the minor child's two siblings. The marital unit would have been protected under the landmark decisions of this court as like Lehr v. Robertson, 463, U.S. 248, 103 S. Ct. 2985, 77 L. Ed. 2d 614(1983) which upheld an adoption decree of the step father in order to protect the marital unit. In addition, Smith v. Org of Foster Families for Equality and Reform, 431 U.S. 816, 862-63, 97 S. Ct. 2094, 53 L. Ed. 2d 14 (1977) emphasized that the force break up of a "natural family" without a showing of unfitness is a violation of due process. This point was emphasized in Quilloin v. Wilcott, 434 U.S. 246, 255, 98 S. Ct. 549, 54 L. Ed. 2d 511 (1978). And finally, probably one of the most important cases in family law statute is the extraordinary case of Michael H. v. Gerald D., 491 U.S. 110 (1989). This case emphasized the importance and protection of the marital family unit, even though both biological parents established a parental bond and relationship to the child. In Justice Scalia's opinion of the case, quoting Justice Powell in Moore v. East Cleveland, 431 U.S. 494 (1977), stating "Our decisions establish that the Constitution protects the sanctity of the family precisely because the institution of the family is deeply rooted in this Nation's history and tradition". Thus, this court held to the conviction of protecting the marital family unit as well as all prior landmark family court cases, with the exception of Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856).

The petitioner asserts that this case has significance, because he identifies with the plaintiff, Dred Scott in seeking the constitutional protection of his family. However, his case was relegated to an issue of "property and politics" of that time with no acknowledgement or recognition of the integrity of his family. Hence, the court is aware that Dred Scott's wife and two daughters were also named on the petition. Thus, the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi's case has become one of discussion of "attorney fees" and "child support"; hence, property; with very little discussion of family law principles from the D.C. trial court. Hence, the petitioner asserts the importance of this case and its contribution to the family law and asks this court to consider its review.

2) The Court of Appeals interlocutory order violated both the federal and local statute of Title 28 U.S.C. Section 46(b) and D.C. Code § 11-705 which guarantees a three judge panel in hearing cases and controversies assigned to the court of appeals.

Pursuant to Rule 10(a), the petitioner asserts that the D.C. Court of Appeals "has so far departed from the accepted and usual course of judicial proceedings so as to call for an exercise of this Court's supervisory power". There are four primary instances upon which the court departed from the usual course of these proceedings:

1) the March 27th, 2007 'Notice of Return' documents mailed to both litigants, Mr. Gyamfi and Ms. Brown, with instruction to encourage both parties to file motions to withdraw their attorneys is an extreme and unusual undertaking for any court to leave both litigants to handle their family matters pro se. This was done without any showing of gross negligence or fraud committed by the attorneys. In Lassiter v. Department of Social Services S.Ct, 1981 452 U.S. 18, 101 S.Ct. 2153, 68 L.Ed.2d 640 the court recognized that "consideration must be given to the risk that a parent will be erroneously deprived of his or her child because the parent is not represented by counsel". This case emphasized the importance of legal counselors' involvement in family cases and points to North Carolina as an example of how some jurisdictions have decided to handle these matters, by assuring parents the right to counsel in such legal matters. Mr. Gyamfi, points to the lack of sensitivity and forethought on the part of the Chief Judge is his order to over-rule his three judge panel and allow the attorneys to withdraw from this case. This is a gross error of the state, and thus the federal courts and attorney general should intervene.

2), The Chief Judge of the D.C. Court of Appeals, Sua Sponte, to overturn the three judge panel order issued just two weeks prior, without a showing of gross error or negligence on the part of the three judge panel (See Appendix A, pgs 3-6). The petitioner was unable to find any case law that governs this issue. However, Title 28 U.S.C 2284 and Title 28 U.S.C. 46(b) stipulate that a three panel judge should hear cases and controversies and that this is a federal statute enacted by the U.S. Congress. In addition, Section 2284 provides an opportunity for 'Direct Appeals' to the Supreme Court if violated. This issue was apart of the August 30th, 2007 Rule 44 Constitutional Challenge to the D.C. Court of Appeals.

3) The Court violation of FRAP (Rule 4) time limitations on filing a 'Notice to Appeal' from the respondent, Ms. Brown, whom filed an appeal on February 24, 2007 (See Appendix D), which is over 180 days after the final order date of July 7th, 2006. This was challenged in a Constitutional Federal Question challenge pursuant to Rule 44 of FRAP (See Appendix D). The D.C. Court of Appeals nor the Department of Justice have ever responded to this challenge which detailed several other infractions such as the 6th Amendment governing attorneys involvement in cases such as these, American Bar Association of Rules of Professional Conduct and lastly, concerns regarding the prejudice and attempted expansion of the record involved in this case. And

4) On August 1st, 2007, the petitioner visited the D.C. Court of Appeals and requested the public case file folder. To his dismay, he discovered that the three-judge panel never reviewed the July 18th, 2007 motion filed by the petitioner. However, the Chief Judge issued an order on July 26th, 2007 in an answer to the motion. However, the public case folder contained all four copies of the motion in which only one copy was stamped as received by the D.C. Court of Appeals.

The court should take note that the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, has filed a petition for the adoption of the minor child with the D.C. Courts, so as to ensure the legal protection of his family and private interest. This petition is in compliance with the congressional Adoption and Safe Family Act of 1997 in protecting families and children and furthermore supported by the Federal statute of Title 46 Section 629 (a)(b)(4). Lastly, in quoting the justice in, Stanley v. Illinois, 405 U.S. 645, 651. "..a parents desire for and right to companionship, care custody, and management of his or her children" is an important interest that "undeniably warrants deference and , absent a powerful countervailing interest, protection". "Here the State has sought not simply to infringe upon that interest, but to end it. If the state prevails, it will have worked a unique deprivation." May v. Anderson, 345 U.S. 528, 533; Armstrong v. Manzo, 380 U.S. 545. The petitioner suggests that the D.C. Court of Appeals have not aligned themselves with the rules that govern the family federal statutes of this court nor congress.

The petitioner concludes on this issue in stating that he believes that the D.C. Appeals court is violating the petitioner's constitutional right to fairness and impartiality. Furthermore, these actions suggest federal violations that govern the 'Color of Law' statutes. This course of action has kept the family in a constant state of perpetual legal flux. The petitioner brings to the court's attention the October 26th, 2007 order which consolidates four outstanding appeals into one. This case is almost four years old which has been a tremendous amount of stress on the family. Hence, the D.C. Court of Appeals lack of initiative to close this case violates the due process of all parties involved, especially the children. (See Appendix A, pg 13).

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

This case is only microcosm of the crisis of the family court and the influx of "child support" encouraged by the state. No self-respecting parent would ever encourage non-financial support of their children; however, this court has to acknowledge that there are abuse child support schemes that operate under the color of law. The petitioner asserts that this is one such case. The abuse of the child support guidelines across the country is having a devastating impact of families and children. It clearly is not in the best interest of the U.S.A, to have its government regulate the lives of the family unit. Before our experience with family court, we thrived as a family and began the process of saving for our future and children. Unfortunately, the respondent and/or legal counselor decided to take advantage of the loose laws that govern family law proceedings and was able to damage the financial earnings of the petitioner along with his credibility as a Federal Information Technology consultant. However, this story is not unique, these abuse schemes are in full operation around the country and we're all impacted. The petitioner will outline several reasons as to why the court should grant this petition.

1) The D.C. Court of Appeals has truly violated the constitutional rights of both litigants. In violation of the federal statute that assures that cases are heard before three judge panels have been violated. The dismissal of the attorneys was truly gross error in judgment and demonstrated insincerity to the seriousness of the issues before this court. I can't imagine in parent opting to dismiss their attorney at the pinnacle of their court proceeding. Finally, the Constitutional questions rose pursuant to Rule 44 of the FRAP was never challenged. The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, was unable to ascertain from the Office of the Attorney General, whether or not the D.C. Court of Appeals certified this challenge. The petitioner, humbly request, that this court may have better luck at getting information from the Department of Justice.

2) The Court should grant this petition to assure the general public that the constitution protects the traditional marital family. The culture has changed tremendously since 1989, when Michael H. v. Gerald D was heard. The roles of genders has changed tremendously and the court should re-evaluate state codes such as D.C. Code 16-909 that governs the legal relationship of fathers and mothers. This law may not have a place in the modern times of gender equality and post Roe v. Wade women. Yes, the law may be unconstitutional and promotes a gender and sex bias that is in direct violation of the 14th Amendment of the United States. Fortunately for the petitioner, he was able to demonstrate by video, print and witnesses that he had taken the "opportunity interest" to cultivate a parent child relationship with the minor child. This law, known to small circles as the "Daddy Cam" law, puts fathers on guard in that they must walk around filming their interactions with their children in order to have a say so in their future if "mom" gets angry and make allegations in a court of law and finds a sympathetic judge that favors women.

3) The Family Court across the state needs some guidance in their balance of dealing with family law statutes and child support guidelines. Although the states assert that child support is completely separate from family law principles, the practical applications suggest otherwise. In small circles, child support hearings are identified as the "poor man" custody court room. Apparently, most fathers are unable to afford a full custody hearing that challenge decisions in magistrate's child-support hearings. The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, was fortunate enough to launch a challenge and establish his legal position on the record in a court of law. Most parents are unable to do this and are left at the mercy of a magistrate's order that literally shatters the relationship between the children's parents. This clearly was not the intention of the architects (Supreme Court Justices and Congress) of family law. However, it has become a reality as the family law crises has and continues to devastate families across this country.

In closing, this case has been litigated for almost four years. The lower court has demonstrated a willingness to keep this case in a perpetual state of litigation regardless of its impact on the lives of the individuals involved. We ask this court to intervene and grant this writ and at minimal request that the Attorney General of the United States, pursuant to Rule 29 of this court, intervene and investigate these constitutional questions rose by the petitioner.

Kwame Gyamfi, Plaintiff

Vs.

Janet Brown, Defendant

Docket Nos. 2004 DRB 1036 and 2004 PS 108,

Judge Odessa F. Vincent

Entered: July 7, 2006

MEMORANDUM AND CUSTODY ORDER

This matter was before the court from January 24, 2005, through January 27, 2005, upon the plaintiff's complaint for Custody of Minor child; and on August 18 2005, for a motion hearing upon plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances. On each date, both the plaintiff and defendant appeared before the court with their respective counsel. Following the August 18, 2005 motion hearing, the defendant filed a Motion for Attorney Fees.

Based upon the evidence the testimony presented during the hearings held herein, and the record herein, the Court makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and custody order.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. This court has jurisdiction of this matter pursuant of DC Code 11-1101(a) and 16-4602.01, et seq.
2. On April 12, 2004, the plaintiff filed a Complaint for Custody of Minor Child. The subject of the complaint is the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998. The defendant filed an Answer to the complaint for custody of Minor Child on May 3, 2004. The defendant also filed a second, identical, Answer to Complaint for Custody of Minor Child on May 4, 2004.
3. On May 5, 2005, the plaintiff file a motion to modify Child support based upon substantial and material change of circumstances. The defendant fi8le an opposition thereto on May 16, 2005, and a supplement and correction to Defendant's opposition to Plaintiff's motion to Modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change in Circumstances on May 18, 2005.
4. The plaintiff and defendant, together, are unmarried biological parents of the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16,1998. The defendant, and the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998, are bona fide residents of the District of Columbia, and have been residents of the District of Columbia for more than six months preceding the filing of the Complaint for Custody of Minor Child. Both the plaintiff and defendant are gainfully employed. The plaintiff earns approximately $180,000 annually. The defendant earns approximately $66,000 annually. Both the plaintiff and defendant have their own homes, wherein the minor child has his own bedroom. Both homes are in close proximity to each other, and are comfortably furnished and maintained, and appropriate for the minor child. On October 19, 2002, the plaintiff married Juliette Larmie. A son was born of that marriage on February 17, 2004.

5. On March 11, 2004, in docket number 2004 PS 108, the Honorable Magistrate Judge Pamela Young Diaz entered an order that required the plaintiff to pay the sum of $1,062, bi-weekly, as child support for the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998. This order was based on Plaintiff's $180,000 yearly salary, and is currently in effect. On May 27, 2004, this court consolidated docket number 2004 PS 108 with docket number 2004 DRB 1036.
6. The plaintiff and defendant met in 1996. They dated for approximately one year and six months before the relationship ended. After the relationship ended, the defendant told the plaintiff that she was pregnant. The plaintiff assured the defendant that he would support her throughout the pregnancy, and did so. They attended Lamaze and mid-wife classes together. The plaintiff was present for the birth of their child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998,and served as the defendant's coach during the pregnancy.
7. After the birth of the minor child, the plaintiff continued to support the defendant. The plaintiff obtained full-time employment. The plaintiff also came to the defendant's home to assist with cooking, cleaning and caring for the baby. When the defendant returned to work, the plaintiff and defendant developed a visitation schedule. The schedule consisted of the plaintiff having custody of the minor child for four nights the first week, and the defendant having custody of the minor child for five nights the next week. This arrangement began when the minor child was three months old and continues to date.

8. The plaintiff and defendant also established a joint bank account, to which each contributed, to pay for groceries and items for the minor child. The plaintiff closed the account in October 20002, because the defendant did not want to continue the arrangement.
9. When the minor child was approximately three years of age, the plaintiff and defendant became concerned about the speech development. They conducted research to find help for the minor child. The defendant, accompanied by the plaintiff, took the minor child to Howard University Hospital ('HUH') for a speech diagnostic evaluation. Initially, the minor child was treated at HUH, but the plaintiff wanted a less clinical program. The plaintiff identified LEAP University. The minor child attended LEAP university until he successfully completed the program. It was at this time that the plaintiff and defendant began to disagree about the minor child's need for continued support.
10. The defendant was concerned about the minor child's auditory processing functions, while the plaintiff believed the minor child did not require any further treatment. Although the plaintiff and defendant could not agree on further for the minor child, the defendant arranged for the minor child to undergo further evaluations and treatment.

11. Both the plaintiff and defendant had insurance coverage for the minor child, but payment for the minor child's therapy became an issue. There was some confusion as to which insurance company would be the primary insurance carrier for the minor child. Because of the confusion, and the fact that some of the treatments the minor child required were not covered by insurance, the defendant paid for the treatments herself.
12. When the minor child was approximately six years old, the parties' ability to communicate about issues relative to the minor child deteriorated significantly. The plaintiff and defendant stopped collaborating about the treatment for the minor child, and on other issues.
13. The minor child is generally happy and healthy. He has a solid bond with both his mother and father, and enjoys being in both homes. The minor child has friends in both neighborhoods, activities in both homes, and contact with extended family members of both his mother and father.
14. Both the plaintiff and defendant appeared to the Court to be in good health, and neither suffers from any mental disease or defect.

15. Both the plaintiff and defendant are gainfully employed, and financially capable of providing for the minor child.
16. The defendant is sincere in her request for custody of the minor child. However, the plaintiff's request for custody of the minor child is insincere, motivated by his desire to be free of his obligation to pay child support for the minor child. In August 2002, and in February 2004, the plaintiff told the defendant that he would rather pay legal fees than pay her child support. Further, the plaintiff told the defendant that if she filed a child support action, he would file a custody action.
17. During the August 18, 2005 hearing on the Plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child support based Upon Substantial Material Change of Circumstances, the plaintiff testified that he had worked under Contract as a consultant with NASA, and as a professor at Southeastern University, earning a total salary of $180,000 annually. The plaintiff testified further that the NASA contract expired on May 31, 2005, and not extended. Therefore, the plaintiff's income was reduced to between $67,000 to $68,000 annually. The plaintiff testified that he was not then currently under any consultant contract and expected no additional income beyond the $67,000 to $68,000 annually earned from his position with Southeastern University.
18. The plaintiff's testimony was impeached by defendant's exhibit 3, a May 31, 2005, AKIM Information Technology Services consulting agreement. During cross-examination, the plaintiff admitted that there was a consulting agreement, entered into on May 31, 2005, that pays a rate of $73.08 per hour. The consulting agreement specified that the proceeds are to be payable to AKIIM Information Technology Services. The plaintiff owns AKIM Information Technology Services, and is the corporation's only employee. The plaintiff testified that he had not performed any work under the consulting agreement. However, the plaintiff's testimony was impeached by defendant's exhibits 4A through C. Defendant's exhibits 4A through C are three invoices, in the amount of $5,864.40, $1,753.92 and $6,400, respectively, which established that the plaintiff had performed services pursuant to the consulting agreement, and had received payments for the services rendered.

19. The plaintiff testified that although he owns AKIM Information Technology Services, he incorporated AKIM Information Technology Services in his wife's name to hide assets that he was receiving with the intent to avoid or reduce his child support payments. Further, the plaintiff was fully aware that he was under contract and receiving income when he filed Plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Base Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances, Plaintiff's reply to Defendant's Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion to modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances, and when he responded to propounded interrogatories and request for production of documents.

20. After the plaintiff's testimony on cross-examination, the plaintiff withdrew Plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances.

21. The defendant file a Motion for Attorney Fees on August 24, 2005. Plaintiff's Response to Defendant's Motion for Attorney Fees was filed on September 9, 2005, and Defendant's reply to Plaintiff's Response to Defendant's Motion for Attorney Fees was filed on September 23, 2005. The Defendant incurred attorney fees in the amount of $6,924.87, related to her defense of the Plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances. Further, the defendant incurred additional fees, not yet specified, for the preparation of the Defendant's Reply to Plaintiff's Response to Defendant's Motion for Attorney Fees, file September 23, 2005.

22. The plaintiff and defendant have adhered to a visitation schedule in place for more than three years. The minor child spends Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights with the defendant, and Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights with the plaintiff. On alternate weeks, the minor child spends Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights with the defendant and Thursday and Friday nights with the plaintiff.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The court adopts the foregoing Findings of Fact. In the Complaint for Custody of Minor Child, the plaintiff requested that the court grant him sole physical custody of the minor child, and averred that sole physical custody would be in the best interest of the minor child. When making a custody determination, the court's primary consideration must be in the best interest of the minor child. In order to determine the best interest of the minor child, the court is guided by consideration of the factors set forth at D.C. Code 16-914(a)(3), and all other relevant information.

In this case, the minor child is, essentially, a happy, healthy, well-adjusted child. Both parents have been fully involved in the life of the minor child. The plaintiff and defendant live in close proximity to each other, and until recently enjoyed a workable co-parenting schedule. Both parties reside in homes, wherein the minor child is comfortable and well cared for. The minor child enjoys friends, family members and activities in each home. Both parents are financially capable of providing for the minor child, and their perspective schedules do not interfere in their ability to provide for the minor child.

However, the evidence has demonstrated that the parties' ability to communicate and reach shared decisions affecting the minor child's welfare has deteriorated to an unworkable level. The plaintiff and defendant are unable to agree on the most mundane issues regarding the minor child. Indeed, the plaintiff and defendant cannot agree on the manner in which they will communicate regarding the minor child.

Notwithstanding the plaintiff's reprehensible motiviation for the instant litigation, the Court concludes that both the plaintiff and defendant sincerely love their son. Further, the best interest of the minor child would serve wherein both the plaintiff and the defendant are afforded the opportunity to parent the minor child. Howeve as the plaintiff and defendant are unable to agree upon a co-parenting plan, the best interest of the minor child would be served where a definite schedule is implemented, and where one parent is awarded the right to final decision-making on all issues related to the health, safety and welfare of the minor child.

Attorney Fees

The defendant has moved the Court for an award of $6,924.87 as attorney fees incurred in defense of the plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances. The Plaintiff's frivolous motion has averred that the appropriate amount of attorney fees be awarded is $2,5499.99.

An award of attorney fees has been permitted where the custody dispute also involved an action for Child Support. See generally, J.A.W v. D.M.E, 591 A.2d 844 (D.C. 1991) (awarding attorney fees in a suit for paternity, including a claim for child support, pursuant to D.C. Code 16-916. Attorney fees may be awarded to the prevailing party in action involving child custody disputes "...as reimbursement for necessaries of the minor child... if the engagement of counsel...was necessary to protect the interest and welfare of the children". Matin V., Tate, 492 A.2d 270, 273 (D.C. 1985), citing Paine v. Paine, 267 A.2d 356 (D.C. 1970).

Once the court has determined that there is authority for an award of attorney fees, the Court must employ a two-step inquiry: (1) whether to award attorney fees, and if so, to whom; and (2) the amount of attorney fees to be awarded. See Rachal V. Rachal, 489 A.2d 476(D.C. 1985); Steadman V. Steadman, 514 A.2d 1196, 1200-01 (D.C. 1986). In determining whether to award attorney fees, the Court may consider whether the litigation has been oppressive or burdensome to the party seeking the award. See Rachal, 489 A2d at 478. Another relevant consideration is the respective financial abilities of the parties to pay. Tydings v. Tydings, 567 A2 886, 889 (D.C. 1989)

If an award of attorney fees is warranted, the Court further excercises its discretion in setting the amount. Steadman, 514 A2d at 1201. The court is not bound by any mathematical computation of time consumed multiplied by an hourly rate. Ritz v. Ritz, 197 A2d 155, 157 (D.C. 1964). Rather, the Court considers, among other things; (c) the necessity for the legal services provided; (d) the quality and nature of the services performed; (e) counsel's skills; (f) the difficulty of the case; and (g) the results obtained. Id; Steadman, 514 A.2d at 1200. Although the Court may consider the motivation of the parties in deciding whether to make an award of fees, it does not consider such factors in determining the amount of the fees, as such consideration may render the award punitive in nature. Rachal, 489 A.2d at 478.

Here, there is no dispute as to the propriety of awarding the defendant attorney fees for her defense of the plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Based Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstances. The plaintiff's motion, if granted, would have significantly reduced the amount of the plaintiff's child support obligation; thereby hindering the defendant's ability to provide the minor child with the necessaries, including, but not limited to, therapy sessions to treat the minor's child's language disorder. This potential effect required the defendant to act in the best interest of the minor child, and employ counsel to represent her. See Martin, 492 A2d. at 270; Moore v. Moore, 391 A.2d 762 (D.C. 1978). Further, the plaintiff withdrew his motion after admitting to this Court that the motion was frivolous, based upon a blatant and deliberate lie. Thus, even though the plaintiff has conceded that an award of attorney fees is appropriate, the Court concludes that there is authority to award attorney fees in this matter.

Further, the Court concludes that the litigation was oppressive and burdensome for the defendant. As the defendant was forced to defend the completely frivolous litigation, it is there fore axiomatic that the unnecessary litigation was oppressive and burdensome.

Regarding the other factors the Court must consider in determining the amount of attorney fees to be awarded, both the plaintiff and defendant are gainfully employed. Both the plaintiff and defendant appeared to the Court to be in good health, and the record indicates that both are capable of continuing in their respective employments. The plaintiff's annual salary of $180,000 is almost three times that of the defendant's salary of $66,000. Thus, the Court concludes that the plaintiff has the ability to pay attorney fees. The quality and nature of the services provided to both the plaintiff and defendant by counsel, as well as counsels' skills, were acceptable. Further, the statement of fees attached to the defendant's Motion for Attorney Fees adequately describes the services performed by defendant's counsel, and is reasonable.

The Court concludes that an award of attorney fees is appropriate, and further concludes that the plaintiff should be required to pay the entire amount of attorney fees incurred by the defendant while opposing the plaintiff's Motion to Modify Child Support Base Upon Substantial and Material Change of Circumstance, in the amount of $6,924.87.

ORDERED that minor child shall be allowed to contact the parent with whom he is not then residing via the minor child's cell phone. It is further ORDERED that the plaintiff and the defendant may modify the foregoing schedule, to such other schedule as may be mutually agreed upon. It is further ORDERED that the plaintiff and defendant are hereby awarded joint legal custody of the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998. The defendant is hereby awarded final decision-making authority regarding all issues related to the health, safety and welfare of the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi, born March 16, 1998. It is further ORDERED that neither the plaintiff nor the defendant shall remove the minor child from the United States of America without fourteen (14) days prior notice to the parent who remains in the U.S.A. It is further ORDERED that the March 12, 2004 Temporary Order of Support is hereby made permanent. It is further ORDERED that the plaintiff and the defendant shall at all times comply with the following directives:

1. Each parent shall exercise, in the utmost good faith, his and her best efforts at all times to encourage and foster the maximum relations, love and affection between the minor child and the other parent. Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant shall impede, obstruct, or interfere with the exercise by the other parent of the right to companionship with the minor child.
2. All conversations, interactions and dealings of any sort between the plaintiff and the defendant, in the presence of the minor child, shall be conducted in a civil and courteous manner. At no time shall any party in this matter disparage any other party, or any family member, or member of the household of any party, in the presence of the minor child, or in any circumstances wherein the minor child may witness or overhear any disparagement.

3. Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant, nor any person acting on their behalf, shall discuss any aspect of this litigation with the minor child, or in the presence of the minor child, or any circumstance wherein the minor child may witness or overhear any such discussions. Further, neither the plaintiff nor the defendant shall allow any other person to discuss any aspect of this litigation with the minor child.
4. Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant, nor any person acting on their behalf, shall make any inquiry of the minor child of the activities of the respective households.
5. Each parent shall promptly and fully notify the other parent of any event that significantly affects the minor child's health, education, behavior and or general welfare.

Each parent shall share with the other parent all information regarding the minor child, including, but not limited to, all identifying and contact information for the minor child's daycare provider, school, aftercare provider, extra-curricular activities, medical treatment provider(s), etc.. and ensure that both parents have equal, unfettered access to all.

TRIAL TRANSCRIPT EXCERPTS

Judge: Hon. Magistrate Diaz

Date: March 11th, 2004

(During the Child Support hearing, the respondent, Ms. Brown, alleged that Mr. Gyamfi was an absentee parent and that the child had exceptional medical expenses and private school expenses)

THE COURT: You can get the support for the minor child?

MS McEACHERN: Definitely, your honor.

THE COURT: The child has been residing with you, I assume, for the last six years at least?

MS. BROWN: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. All right, and we can do a temporary support order at this time. What I typically do in submitting my four-page order, you know, Counsel, I will do a – I'm going to run the guidelines, so I'm going to need – I do what I call summary hearings for temporary support. I don't get into all the details of all the other issues. I don't necessarily say at this time that you need to get half of a private school bill paid. That's something that you, I'm assuming you're going to negotiate as time goes on, who pays that.

MR. HUNTER: Your honor, this is a case where custody is totally shared by the parties. My client has the child half the time..

(The defendant, Mr. Gyamfi, is trying to make the court aware that there are no private school tuition, exceptional medical expenses nor issues with the child's health)

pg. 21

MR. GYAMFI: Now, when I had spoken to the Hospital for Sick Children, Isaiah's clinician, who is Diane, I informed her that I thought that Isaiah was – it was not fair to him to have to be going to three institutions at one time because his speech impediment, as they put it, is not so horrible that he cannot communicate in the classroom. The classroom – the teachers at Langdon School are not complaining about Isaiah's inability to communicate. And I have records from his school that suggest that Isaiah is thriving in mathematics, reading, writing, etc..

THE COURT: Can I? You know, I hate to be a momma right now, but I had the same speech issues with my own son. They don't complain that my son can't communicate. I do because I know what really he sounds like. And they're not going to provide it for you because they've got to pay for it out of their pockets, so they won't tell you in a classroom that your child had speech needs. You see it, and then you have to get the resources for your child to learn to be able to speak; otherwise, your child will go through third, fourth, fifth grade and have speech problems and communications problems that you have to, as a parent, decide because these facilities aren't trying to tell you that you need something that you're going to pay for, or they're going to be required....

(The plaintiff, Mr. Gyamfi, is explaining to the court, the exhibits number 1 and 2, which are family photos. This was done to illustrate to the court, that the child was apart of an existing family unit)

ARMIN KUDER: What are exhibits Nos. 1, what is Exhibit No. 1 ?

KWAME GYAMFI: Exhibit No. 1 is family photos and activities of Isaiah in my household.

ARMIN KUDER: Okay. And Exhibit No. 2 is ?

KWAME GYAMFI: The DVD that illustrates the parental relationship that I have with Isaiah.

ARMIN KUDER: ..What are those nine pictures from?

KWAME GYAMFI: They're excerpts from the DVD

ARMIN KUDER: All right. And the DVD has been submitted as Exhibit No. 2, correct ?

KWAME GYAMFI: Yes.

(The attorney for the plaintiff, Armin Kuder, is having the witness, Mr. Gyamfi illustrate a DVD and photographic showing of his relationship to the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi. This was evidence was to satisfy and establish the legal relationship between father and child as described under D.C. Code Sec. 16-909(a). The court interrupts the testimony as follows.)

MR. KUDER: I'm trying to give this Court some feeling for how Mr. Gyamfi has been a father to Isaiah.

THE COURT: Great. I got it. Let's move on.

MR. KUDER: Okay

MR. KUDER. Can we move to the next picture ?

KWAME GYAMFI. Sure

MR. KUDER. Let's see it.

(Thereupon, the audio/visual recording played for the court was reported, but is not transcribed herein)

THE COURT: No, What I mean to say is, Mr. Kuder, I don't know how these repeated images of Mr. Gyamfi reinforce any more of what you want to do. You've shown me a series of images from the DVD, and I presume there are photos that correspond to them that show Mr. Gyamfi with his son. I don't know what the utility is of watching them from the child's birth until his upcoming seventh birthday, unless there is something I'm missing. You want me to show, are you trying to show me that he spent time with the child? I accept what's in the photographs and what's on the DVD. I don't need to see each and every time he spent with his child.

(Ms. Ada Smith, has been the first and only day care provider of the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi. Her testimony was brought in to impeach the suggestion of the plaintiff, Mr. Gyamfi being an absentee parent and establish a neutral observer of the parental arrangement between the plaintiff and defendant)

ARMIN KUDER: And you know the plaintiff and the defendant, Kwame Gyamfi and Janet Brown.

ADA SMITH: Yes

ARMIN KUDER: How do you know them?

ADA SMITH: Their son, Isaiah, went to my day care.

ARMIN KUDER: And when was that, how long ?

ADA SMITH: The child has been in my day care six or seven years.

ARMIN KUDER: ..How were you paid ?

ADA SMITH: I was paid by check once a month. They paid me for the whole month, and Kwame would write me a check every month, and the check, it was a joint account. It had Janet's name on it and his name.

ARMIN KUDER: ..who provided transportation to your day care center or home?

ADA SMITH: Janet would, the days that Janet had the child, she would provide transportation to the day care, and the days that Kwame had him, he would provide day care, either to the day care or the school, and I would pick them up, both of them, either to the day care or the school, and I would pick them up from school.

ARMIN KUDER: Do you remember how many days each was responsible for ?

ADA SMITH: Usually, Janet would bring the children, bring Isaiah on Mondays to sometimes Wednesday. It kind of reflect from one week to the next, and I think Wednesday, sometimes he would go to Kwame on Wednesday or Thursday afternoon, and then, on Monday, it would rotate back around. Janet would bring him back.

(Ms. Smith is being asked about the career travel of Janet Brown and its impact on the schedule and arragement. This testimony was to show the court, that both Ms. Brown and Mr. Gyamfi was in partnership in parenting the child when she traveled for business.)

ARMIN KUDER: Back in those days, did either one of the parents travel at all, out of town?

ADA SMITH: Yes.

ARMIN KUDER: Who?

ADA SMITH: Janet.

ARMIN KUDER: And who took care of transportation for Isaiah when she was gone?

ADA SMITH: His father, as far as I know.

ARMIN KUDER: His father, meaning ?

ADA SMITH: Kwame

(Dr. Ovetta Harrison-Harris, was an expert witness for the plaintiff, Mr. Gyamfi. Her testimony was to discredit the perception that the minor child had exceptional medical issues based on the child-support hearing testimony of the defendant, Ms. Brown. ...

ARMIN KUDER: What did you review?

DR. HARRIS: I reviewed several clinical reports, diagnostic reports, therapeutic reports.

ARMIN KUDER: Okay, And on the basis of, of that review what conclusion did you reach?

DR. HARRIS: On the basis of all that information I concluded that Isaiah had, had difficulties early on in his life with his language development, that he was consistently meeting goals, and that he was progressing very nicely, and at this point in time what I observed as a young man who had a wonderful control over language, and a young man who I felt may not need the services of speech language pathologist at this time, but may better served by his classroom teacher, with emphasis in language arts versus language therapy.

ARMIN KUDER: Assuming, Dr. Harris, that in 2003 the child was receiving the care at the Hospital for Sick Children, and assuming he was also in a group at Children's Hospital at the same time, in your opinion can you state with a reasonable degree of professional certainty, whether it would have been appropriate to have him go to still a further treatment regime at the University of Maryland?

DR. HARRIS: It is unusual for a child to receive therapy at three different facilities.

(Dr. Joyce Brown-Andrews, is the god-parent and maternal aunt of the minor child, Isaiah Gyamfi. Her testimony was introduced to provide her observations of the child with the defendant, Ms. Brown. She testified via video tape deposition in Malibu, California for the defendant, Mr. Gyamfi.)

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
COURT OF APPEALS

07-FM-289 Consolidated with 06-FM-933

Kwame Gyamfi,

Plaintiff,

DRB1036-04

v.

Janet Brown,

Defendant.

NOTICE OF CHALLENGE TO THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS AND REQUEST FOR APPROPRIATE PROCEDURAL RELIEF PRUSUANT UPON THE (FRAP) RULE 44

COMES NOW Mr. Kwame Gyamfi, a citizen of the United States and resident in the state of Maryland to question the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia jurisdiction of the case #07-FM-289 and to provide timely notice to the appropriate parties pursuant to Rule 44 of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure ("FRAP"). The Appellant, Mr. Gyamfi, also respectfully requests specific and appropriate procedural relief, as a direct consequence and discussion provided in this Notice.

PROCEDURAL SETTING

On April 11, 2007 this court issued an order directing the counselor for the plaintiff/ appellant to file his legal brief in the above matter "within 30 days" from this order. The defendant/appelle, Ms. Brown, was ordered to file her reply brief "30 days thereafter". The court further issued an order to vacate the defendant/appelle's notice of appeal dated February 23rd, 2007 case number #07-FM-289.

On April 26th, 2007 the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals over ruled the tribunal's April 11th, 2007 order. The Chief Judge reinstated the 07-FM-289 case and consolidated this case with the appellant's case #06-FM-933. In addition, the Chief Judge granted the counselor's motion to withdraw from the case. Both the Appellant and the Appelle were ordered to proceed with the case pro se and was given an additional 40 days to file their prospective briefs. Ms. Brown failed to file her prospective brief on time and was given the option to file a motion out of time. Mr. Gyamfi, filed a response motion to deny this option based on Rule 4(a) which required a timely notice of appeal be filed 30 days after the final order. The final order was issued in July 7, 2006 of last year and the defendant filed her notice in February 23, 2007 a total of 231 days had already elapsed. Mr. Gyamfi argued that the Court of Appeals lack jurisdiction in hearing this matter. On July 26th, 2007 the Chief Judge denied the plaintiff's motion to deny the re-instatement of the case #07-FM-289. The plaintiff, Mr. Gyamfi, on August 2, 2007 filed a 'Motion to Reconsider' the dismissal of #07-FM-289. As of to date, there has been no response to the motion. Therefore, the plaintiff, Mr.

Gyamfi is moved to pursue relief based on Rule 44 of the FRAP.

If Appellant's understanding of the ruling of the Chief Judge is incorrect, this court is asked to provide immediate clarification, to prevent appellant from going too far in the wrong direction.

ISSUES WITIN THIS NOTICE

D.C. Court of Appeals Jurisdiction; The D.C. Court of Appeals website provides a downloadable document that outlines the rules and procedures for the Court of Appeals. The document is called, From the Ground Up: The Fundamentals of Practice in the D.C. Court of Appeals. In section 4 (d) the rule specifically states; "But regardless of the type of proceeding, the time period is jurisdictional and the Court will not hear an appeal filed after it has expired". The appellant is confused and concern about the actions of the Court. Mr. Gyamfi relies on the rules, procedures and most importantly the landmark Supreme Court cases that established the foundation for Family Law. If the court will not stand behind their own rules, rules of the FRAP, then the Appellant feels as though the landmark cases will not be supported as well. This action will extend the proceedings to include en banc proceedings and possible federal appellant proceedings, which the plaintiff is opposed.

Right to an Attorney (6th Amendment Violation), The action of the Plaintiff's attorney, Ms. Davis, is incredulous and negligent. The 'motion to withdraw as counsel' she filed on April 13th, 2007 damaged and prejudiced this case. The Chief Judge relied on this document to issue an order that over ruled the tribunal's order dated April 11th, 2007, which Mr. Gyamfi never encouraged, signed or supported a motion upon which he proceed in this matter pro se. This matter is currently before the Bar Counsel. Mr. Gyamfi asserts that this action by the Chief Judge violated his 6th Amendment right to counsel. The specific concern regarding this action gives a false perception that could prejudice the tribunal empowered to decide this matter.

Prejudice the record, 'Red Herring'; The primary argument in the trial courts final order suggest that the plaintiff is 'angry' about child support. This argument was based on an action of the court that is not supported by factual findings in the trial transcript. Therefore, Mr. Gyamfi, strongly oppose the defendant's case #07-FM-289 regarding attorney fees. This action is an attempt to prejudice the record by creating a 'Red Herring' that detracts from the real issue of the child's best interest in this matter. Erroneous act by the Chief Judge; The appellant, Mr. Gyamfi, has been unable to find any case law, rules or procedure that authorized the Chief Judge to intervene in the matter and overrule the tribunal without any legal instruments in the form of a motion or explanation. Mr. Gyamfi is simply confused and baffled by this action. It is very possible that the Chief Judge's action may have permanently damaged the credibility of this case. This action suggest that the tribunal lacks the power to decide matters in these proceedings and that at the stroke of a pen, their decisions can be overruled outside the regular procedure of rules that govern due process.

IN CONCLUSION; Mr. Gyamfi simply wants the court to provide an explanation as to the recent actions of the court and request an oral calendaring of this case once the final documents have been submitted. In addition, Mr. Gyamfi asks that the case #07-FM-933 be dismissed.

The Petitioner, Mr. Kwame Gyamfi, respectfully submits this Supplemental Brief in support of the pending Writ of Certiorari, case number 07-809, currently before this court.

STATEMENT

Pursuant to this Court's Rule 15.8, the petitioner provides this supplemental brief to answer the outstanding issue regarding Rule 14(1)(e)(v) of this court, which required the petitioner to ascertain under Rule 29(4)(b) if the lower court certified the constitutional challenge with the U.S. Attorney General, initiated by the petitioner under FRAP 44 during the course of the appellate proceedings (See App D pg 7).

At the time of the original filing of the Petitioner's Writ of Certiorari dated, December 14, 2007, the certification answer from the U.S. Attorney General Office was not available to the petitioner1[1]. Hence, the petitioner wishes to bring to this courts attention, under this rule (15.8), two issues that have significance while this case is still pending before this court. These issues are 1)the U.S. Department of Justice official response to the petitioner's request for verification related to the FRAP 44 challenge and 2) the audit of the docket sheets from the lower court's pleadings and transactions with an emphasis on the magistrate's order of child support.

[1] See Petitioner's Writ of Certiorari pg 15

U.S. Department of Justice

On January 11th, 2008, the United States Department of Justice, Civil Division confirmed the following:

> "This office has consulted with the Office of the Solicitor General and ascertained that a copy of your petition for a writ of certiorari with the various appendices and certificate of service was received by that office. An attorney in this office also checked with the clerk's office in the D.C. Court of Appeals, and was advised there is no indication on the docket sheet for your case that the court of appeals has ever issued any certification in response to your Rule 44 notice" (See App. A).

This notice led the petitioner to request copies of the docket sheets of the docket numbers associated with this case from the lower courts; which included the D.C. Court of Appeals, Domestic Relations Division of both the Child Support Division and The Superior Court Family Division (See App B,C & D). The intent of the petitioner was to perform an audit and analysis of the transactions of the docket sheets and assess any abnormalities or irregularities that should be brought to this court's attention. The petitioner approached this task as an accountant would in reviewing cash flow and balance sheet statements of a corporation. The logic in this approach is obvious; a balance sheet statement must balance in view of assets, liabilities and equity. It doesn't matter if a company is profitable or not profitable; the statement must still "make sense" and therefore balance under the guidelines of standard accounting practices under GAAP[2]. In many ways, a "docket sheet" is a general ledger that accounts for (all) recorded transactions of a given case of the court (at least in principle). It is the responsibility of the clerk of the court to insure that these transactions are appropriately recorded on the docket of each case.[3]

Docket Sheet Analysis & Audit

The petitioner recognizes that there are challenges in this approach; however it is not an uncommon approach as noted by the U.S. Internal Revenue Services in their publication, Financial Investigations "A Financial Approach to Detecting and Resolving Crimes", which states "The docket sheet [of the court] can be very valuable to an investigator".

Hence, the Mr. Gyamfi understands that at some point this unconventional approach will have weaknesses. Therefore, this approach is only to provide an illustration of a basic review as to the activities of this case utilizing the docket sheets as a baseline. Hence, the court should take note that there are roughly eight docket numbers associated with this case, three of which are 'Writs of Mandamus' requested by the petitioner while the case was in the appellant phase of the D.C. Court of Appeals and simultaneously having litigation in the trial court. Therefore, this brief will only focus on three primary docket numbers which includes; the child support, child custody and the appellant case in order to avoid a voluminous supplemental document. (See App B,C & D).

Findings

Child Support Case-Audit #S-108-04

The results of this audit revealed that the child support docket sheet first transaction was entered September 7th, 2004 (See App B pg 3). This transaction comes six months after the initial March 11th, 2004 child support hearing, upon which the respondent, Ms. Brown, was awarded 'temporary child support'. Furthermore, the records from the District of Columbia Office of the Attorney General, Child Support Division, revealed that the case number, S-108-04 was immediately transferred to that agency for collection.

The omission of the docket entry items brings the magistrate's court order into scrutiny based on the Civil Rules of procedure regarding the administration of orders issued by the court. Furthermore, it calls into question the activity of the court and the Office of the Attorney General's procedures with respect to child support and collections.

The petitioner asks this court to take note of the opening remarks of the transcript of the child support hearing (See App E, pg 1-2). Clearly the clerk is present by asking for all parties to identify themselves for the record. In addition, the transcript reveals that there should have been docketed items prior to the March 11, 2004 hearing date. One of docketed entries should have been the initial complaint filed by the plaintiff, Ms. Brown, on January 28th, 2004 and the response to that filing by the respondent, Mr. Gyamfi on February 10th, 2004. The petitioner's counselor, Jerry Hunter, Esq. clearly stated that we "have extensive discovery..that has yet to [be seen]" (See App. E, pg 3).

In addition, the petitioner questioned the validity of the order soon after the order and documents were mailed to his home. The Child Support order mailed to the petitioner, dated March 12th, 2004, instructed him to ".. direct future correspondence to the attorney"; Diedra L. Burton-Davis. The order gave the impression that Ms. Diedra L. Burton-Davis was an attorney that worked for Corporate Counsel[4], as both Corporate Counsel and the attorney were listed on the order in two separate columns. The petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, did make attempts to address his questions and concerns to the addresses listed on the order but was not successful. The name and address on the order was bogus as the petitioner's correspondences were mailed back stamped "RETURN TO SENDER, INSUFFICIENT ADDRESS". The petitioner continued to pursue the issue by contacting the Corporate Counsel's office. There he was advised that there was no attorney on staff by the name of "'Diedra L. Burton-Davis" and furthermore, they never had a client by the name of "Janet Brown". Frustrated the petitioner abandoned this issue and refocused his energy on the upcoming trial.

However, the defendant's counselor, Diedra L. McEachern, raised this issue before the trial court during the custody hearing on January 24th, 2005 on cross examination. Mr. Gyamfi advised counsel on cross examination that he was unaware of the name on the order in stating; "I thought it was you, but it wasn't you, it was a completely different name" (See App E pg 4). The counselor stated "it was me... Diedra L. Burton-Davis" listed on the child support order. (See App E, pg 4) Attorney McEachern further proceeded to ask the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, his reasons for pursuing the issue of the child support order upon which he stated;

> "I asked the question because I did not recognize the name, Diedra Burton-Davis. Counsel [Jerry Hunter, petitioner's counselor at the time] and I had always communicated with Eileen Oliver. When the magistrate sent mailing to my house, it had Corporation Counsel. Every lawyer that I talked to was confused as to why Corporation Counsel was listed on that document that I was sharing with them and felt that it was something that I needed to investigate" (See App E, pg 5-6)

Attorney McEachern, further asked the court to certify theie exhibit #14 on the record, which was the letter the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, addressed to the Attorney, "Diedra Burton-Davis and Corporate Counsel" (See App E., pg 6). The letter was certified in its entirety, dated June 22nd, 2004 which clearly indicated that the petitioner, Mr. Gyamfi, at that time was under the impression that the order issued by the magistrate was an official order coming from Corporate Counsel with the name and address of the attorney upon which the petitioner was instructed to address his issues and "correspondences" to attorney, Diedra L. Burton-Davis(See App F). Four years removed and eight docketed cases, the petitioner, Mr Gyamfi, can clearly review the child support order and with absolute certainty advise this court that it is a bogus and fraudulent document with a spurious name and address. There is no reason why an official document from the court would instruct a litigant to correspond with the opposition attorney regarding child support matters.

The petitioner asks this court to take into consideration the matter of Arthur Andersen vs. United States, (04-368) 544 U.S. 696 (2005) 374 F.3d. 281, whereas this court recognized that "off-balance sheet" activities during the Enron investigation were illegal and properly investigated. These investigations led to the discovery of "raptors" that were used to hide financial debt from investors and auditors. If this court follows the logic of the petitioner and apply basic GAAP principles to the "docket sheet" abnormalities and omissions, then this may provide the court with some insight into why the petitioner has asks this court for its review and intervention.

In closing and summary on this issue, the child support court never entered this case on the docket of the court. Neither did the intake staff once the plaintiff, Ms. Brown, filed her initial complaint. The first transaction on the docket sheet is September 7, 2004, the entry on the sheet is the defendant's counselor, Diedra L. McEachern who filed a discovery certificate (See App B, pg 3) Hence, if the petitioner, Mr. Kwame Gyamfi, would not have asserted his claim for custody of the minor child and forced the court to consolidate and review of this mater, it is possible that this case would have never been on the books of the District of Columbia Superior Court Domestic Relations[3], but would rather have only been listed in the D.C. Office of the Attorney General, Child Support Division.

[3] Before the child support hearing dated 3/11/2004, the petitioner filed a counter claim dated 2/10/2004 for custody and later motioned that the Superior Court consolidate the custody matter with the child support case. The Superior Court granted this motion and heard testimony on the issue on January of 2005.

Child Custody Case - Audit #04-DRB-1036

The second revelation of the audit revealed that the Superior Court's final order dated July 7, 2006 comes over 500 days after the final trial date of January 27, 2005[6]. This action of the court is in direct conflict with the state's D.C. Code §11-1104(b), which mandates the permanent placement of a child shall commence as quickly as possible. This notion of urgency in domestic proceedings is common knowledge amongst justices in their appreciation of the sensitive issues related in domestic relations cases. In Lassiter v. Dept of Social Services 1981 452 U.S. 18, 101 S.Ct. 2153, 68 L.Ed.2d 640, this court stated that "child custody litigation must be concluded as rapidly as is consistent with fairness..and to protect litigants against unpredictable and unchecked adverse governmental action".

There are quite a number of transactions and pleadings on the docket sheet involving the custody proceedings of this case. The appendix reveals up to 27 pages of docketed transactions (See App C). If this court recognizes that unnecessary trial proceedings impugned the integrity of the family as this court found in Michael H v. Gerald D., 491 U.S. 110 (1989) then this court must recognize that the actions of the lower court truly violated the substantive due process of this family's 5th Amendment right of due process. The use of the court powers to antagonize the family to invoke a 'break up', indirectly is truly a violation of the due process of the constitution. In short, family law was never intended to force a break up of a functional family unit. Instead, the family law rules and procedures are to protect the sanctity of the family.

[6] The Petitioner filed a SCR Dom 52(c) Praecipe on February 22nd, 2006 to "compel the trial judge to enter a final order" after waiting over a year for a final order.

In closing on this issue, the petitioner asserts that the merit brief will reveal to this court concerning actions of the lower courts rulings and procedures on the occasion of the January 10-11, 2007 hearings (See App C, pg 11) and the November 11, 2007 order (See App C, pg 1). Hence, the petitioner asserts that these items represent the "shockingly" bias and willingness of the court to abuse its discretion in order to intimidate this litigant to submit to her will and abandon their legal right to be heard in a court of law, even to the detriment of forcing a "break up" of a family unit.

Court of Appeals Case Audit #06-FM-933

The final revelation in auditing the D.C. Court of Appeals docket sheets revealed several issues including omissions, timing issues and questionable orders. Much of these issues have already been presented in the 'Writ of Certiorari'. Therefore, the petitioner ask this court to consider items 3/27/2007 on page 3 in appendix D, whereas the D.C. Court of Appeals sent out 'Notices' instructing the litigants to withdraw their counselors. This is documented in petitioner's Writ of Certiorari therefore he only brings it to this courts attention again because a second notice that was mailed on April 11, 2007 with the brief and appendices with specific instructions to have the attorney of record withdraw from the case. This comes as the petitioner sent a reply in early April, 2007 advising the court staff that the March 27th, 2007, 'notice' was sent in error and to consider the time limitations on this case. The court then sent a second notice along with all of the appendices and brief with specific instructions to have "[attorney name, Ardelia Davis]" withdraw from the case. This second notice is missing from the Docket Sheet. Finally, the most important item on the appellant docket sheet is found on page 9, dated 12/03/2007 under 07-FM-1119. This item is the petitioner's 'Petition for Adoption of Minor' child. This was filed based on the derived pleadings of this case. The petitioner filed this petition based on the 'Child's Best Interest' statute that protects the family from future frivolous court proceedings.

U.S.C. Title 42, Section § 1983

The history of Title 42 Section § 1983 is a necessary baseline in review of this petition. The petitioner and his family are seeking 'Federal Protection' from the actions of the District of Columbia State court, as the petitioner is unable to "enforce his civil rights" a State Supreme Court (District of Columbia).

Therefore, this supplemental brief provides a baseline of facts that support neglect and disregard for the civil rights of the petitioner and his family. The actions of the court are not new given the history of Title 42 section § 1983. The legislatures recognized that the 'Invisible Empire', known as the KKK, conspired to deny the freedman their newly found constitutional rights during the reconstruction era of this nation's history. Known as the 'Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871' during the post civil war era, in the modern era, Title 42 Section § 1983 provides an opportunity for the federal courts to intervene and redress any citizens denied their constitutional rights by state actors acting 'under the color of state law'. The greatness in the law is its transparency and applications in the modern era. This court surely must recognize that the 'Invisible Empire' still exist today. However, members are not hooded knight riders that have infiltrated the state agencies and judiciaries, rather, members of this group are from every class, race, religion and gender known today as the new KKK of Korruption, Kronyism and Kolluders. As like the 1870's while hearings were being addressed with regard to the 'Invisible Empire', in the modern era, the 'Invisible Empire' is a significant threat to this nation's way of life. The petitioner doesn't invoke this title lightly, as he recognizes under Rochin v. California, 342 U.S. 165 (1952), that mere allegations doesn't necessarily "shock the conscience" of federal judges in their consideration of § 1983 alleged violations. However, the petitioner asks this court to consider the Stanley Milgram[7] experiment in review of this petitioner's request. Frankly, it is possible that the federal court may not see the urgency of this matter, given the enormous case load and worldly issues that flood the court. However, as like the Milgram experiment, state agents and actors have very little 'conscience' when dealing with the livelihood of other people as long as the lower court continues to provide the authorization, whether legitimate or not. The petitioner has already spent over $130,000 in defense of this case and continues to fight this case, as this supplemental brief bear witness.

The petitioner asserts that there is no doubt that the March, 2004 child support hearing was based on fraud and deception. The documents mailed from the Court were spurious and fraudulent. Again, if the petitioner would have angrily walked away out of disgust with the "system", then this scheme would have never been challenged. Instead, this issue was challenged and thoroughly documented therefore, the petitioner asks this court to invoke its judicial and federal powers to consent to the petitioner's writ and assume jurisdiction of the case for review and remand in favor of the petitioner.

In closing, the petitioner asserts the following authority that best states his position on these issues, which comes from the federal courts of the District of Columbia in the matter of United States v. Seigel, 168 F.2d 143 (D.C. Cir. 1948). "Justice cannot be administered in chaos...what is done in one case must be done in all"

Re: Kwame Gyamfi v. Janet Brown, Sup. Ct. No-07-809; D.C. Ct. App. No. 07-FM-289

Dear Professor Gyamfi:

This letter will confirm the information I previously sent you by email. In my email of January 8, 2008, I advised you:

This Office has consulted with the Office of the Solicitor General and ascertained that a copy of your petition for a writ of certiorari with the various appendices and certificate of service was received by that office. An Attorney of this office also checked with the clerk's office in the D.C.

Court of Appeals (Telephone: (202)879-2700), and was advised there is no indication on the docket sheet for your case that the court of appeals has ever issued any certification in response to your Rule 44 notice. Since the government is not a party to this case, you should not anticipate any filings from us in the Supreme Court or the court of appeals.

In response to your subsequent email, I replied:

As I advised you, the government is not a party to this case, and you should not anticipate any filings from the Government in the Supreme Court. If you wish to send your filings to the Government, they should be served upon the Office of the Solicitor General.

I am sorry we cannot be of further assistance to you.

Sincerely,

Robert E. Kopp

TRIAL TRANSCRIPT EXCERPTS

Judge: Pamela Young Diaz

Date: March 11, 2004

Docket Number: S108-04, Page 2,3,18

(This is the opening of the case, the clerk is present and asking that each party state there name for the record. On page 3, Defendant's Counsel, Jerry Hunter is giving the court a copy of the counter claim that was filed on Feb. 10th,2004. On page 18 of the transcript, counselor Jerry Hunter had advised the court that the defendant had not received any response to the discovery that was filed on Feb. 10th, 2004. This is important, because the court has no record on the docket sheet of any of these transactions)

Pg. 2,3
THE CLERK – 13 on the calendar, 108 2004, Brown v. Gyamfi. Counsel, please state your name for the record.

MS McCANN- Good Morning, Your Honor; Diedre McCann on behalf of Janet Brown

THE CLERK: Ma'am, please state your name.

MS. BROWN: Janet Camille Brown

THE CLERK: Thank You. Counsel?

MR. HUNTER: Good morning, your honor, Jerry Hunter, Counsel for the defendant and counter-plaintiff.

THE CLERK: Thank you. Sir, please state your name.

MR. GYAMFI: Kwame Gyamfi

THE COURT: Counsel?

MS. McCANN: Yes, your honor, Here today on a custody – a child support matter, I'm sorry, of the parties' soon-to-be six-year-old son. And Mr. Gyamfi has filed an answer and counter-claim for custody.

THE COURT: oh, that's part, I don't have. Okay, it didn't come through my (indiscernible) so, I hope you have an extra, extra copy in there.

MR. HUNTER: Do you have an extra copy? Okay.

MR. GYAMFI: Yes, I have an extra copy.

MR. HUNTER: Since this was filed – let me give you this.

THE COURT: You filed it - - What date was it time-stamped?

MR. HUNTER: This copy's time-stamped, so.

THE COURT: On the 12th, yes.

MR. HUNTER: I can run off - -

THE COURT: Oh, gosh, February 10?

MR. GYAMFI: Do you need one?

MR. HUNTER: No (indiscernible)

MR. GYAMFI: Okay

THE COURT: Okay

MR. HUNTER: You can keep that, Your Honor. I can run off another copy.

THE COURT: Okay, but you really need to have a copy of the time-stamped one, to be honest with you, but February 10th, all right.

Pg 18.

MR. HUNTER: Your Honor, I have extensive discovery in this case because I have yet to see, my client has yet to see any bills that this child has that are not covered by insurance. He has total insurance for this child. She has insurance. If there are any bills that are not covered by her insurance, his insurance covers it. There are no bills.

(The defendant's counselor, Ms. Deidra L. McEachern, is cross examining the petitioner, Mr. Kwame Gyamfi. This excerpt brings onto the record evidence regarding the validity of the order issued in the child support hearing on March 12, 2004. Mr. Kwame Gyamfi made attempts to validate the order and was unable to validate the authenticity of the order and eventually focused his attention on the upcoming custody hearings and proceedings)

Pg 195

Question (Mrs. McEachern): In fact, when you thought that I worked for Corporation Counsel, you wrote a letter to me and asked me to give you a copy of the Corporation Counsel's booklet?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): It wasn't you. I thought it was you, but it wasn't you, it was a completely different name.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): Actually, it was me. Was it Deidra Burton Davis?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): That's correct.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): That's me.

Answer(K. Gyamfi): Oh that's you. Okay. I'm sorry, I thought it was a mixup at the Corporation Counsel. I didn't know.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): And you also insinuated that I had something to do with getting the courtroom changed?

Answer (K. Gyamfi) Actually, we didn't know who you were when you walked into the courtroom, we thought you was Aileen Oliver.

THE COURT: Answer her question, why don't you just answer the question.

THE WITNESS: Cousnsel, could you repeat the question, please?

Question (Mrs. McEachern): In your letter that you wrote to me, you insinuated that I had something to do with getting the courtroom changed for the child support hearing?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): I don't believe I insinuated that.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): Did you ask if I had something t do with that?

Answer (K. Gyamfi) I did ask that.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): And what, why did you ask that question?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): I asked the question because I did not recognize the name, Deidra Burton Davis. Counsel and I had always communicated with Eileen Oliver. When the Magistrate sent mailing to my house, it had corporation counsel. Every lawyer that I talked to was confused as to why Corporation Counsel was listed on that document that I was sharing with them and felt that it was something that I needed to investigate.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): May I approach the witness, your honor?

THE COURT: Yes,

Question (Mrs. McEachern): (Indiscernible) you defense Exhibit No. 14, please? Did you find it?

Answer (K. Gyamfi) Yes, I have it.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): Okay, Is there a letter of June 22nd written to my attention, Deidra Burton-Davis, from you?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): That's correct.

Question (Mrs. McEachern): And is that the letter where you, that I was speaking of?

Answer (K. Gyamfi): Yes, that's correct.

Mrs. McEachern: Your Honor, I'd ask to move defendant's Exhibit No. 14

MR KUDER: No Objection,

THE COURT: All right. Defendant's No. 14 is admitted, no objection.

Re: Request for Documentation & Explanation

Attention: Deidra L. Burton-Davis

As you may be aware, the case #PS-108-04 has been consolidated with case #DR-1036-04 under Judge Vincent. In the above mention case PS-108-04 your services were rendered for Ms. Janet C. Brown. According to the Child Support Enforcement Division public recording, there is "no confidential attorney-client relationship exist between the Office of the Corporation Counsel and the custodial parent". Therefore, in preparation for the upcoming custody case, please provide the following documentation and explanations to the following request:

- Please provide a complete copy of the Corporation Counsel policy booklet.

- Please provide a copy of Janet C. Brown's application to utilize CSED's services.

- The Court order for Child support (PS-108-04) was filed by a private attorney named, Aileen Oliver on January 28, 2004. (see attachments). Did you or anyone in your office have any communications or correspondences with Ms. Oliver before or after the court date of March 11, 2004 regarding Ms. Brown's legal issues? If yes, then please provide an explanation of what was said and any documentation that was shared.

- This case was originally scheduled for Court room 47 on March 11,2004. This room assignment was changed to the main court building in room 110. Did you or anyone in your office have anything to with these changes? If yes, then please provide an explanation as to why it was changed and who was contacted in order to make the change. Please provide the full name(s) and contact information.

- During the court proceedings of March 11, 2004. It was your testimony and client that suggested that the child in question was a "special needs" child. Please provide a copy of the Individual Education Program (IEP) recommendations from Langdon Elementary School, which would support this allegation or any other document that was provided to you by Ms. Brown before the court proceedings.

- Also, during these court proceedings, it was your testimony and client that suggested that the court hear the expert testimony of Andrea Thompson. Please provide a copy of her experience in the area of Speech-Communications and language therapy and any documentation that would have supported her testimony.

- The public website of your office suggest the following as it relates to clients: The CSED helps you if you receive a public assistance check (Welfare/TANF) to care for a child under age 18. Please provide an explanation as to whether clients must be on "Welfare" and site the specific page number as to where it could be found in the policy booklet.

- Please forward the requested items to the above address in Bowie, MD.

Thank you for your cooperation.
